R. SIMMONS, Statesboro, Georgia

STATE IS NEGLECTING GOLDEN OPPORTUNITIES

MANY ARTICLES OF COMMERCE ARE BEING BOUGHT INSTEAD OF USING HOME PRODUCTS.

Millen, Jan. 7.—That the people of Georgia are overlooking their advantages and opportunities in not living and boarding at home is brought out very forcibly in one section of the report of W. R. Criles, secretary of the Millen and Jenkins County Chamber of Commerce, rendered to that body at its first meeting of the new year. What Mr. Criles says in regard to Millen is so typical of every town in the state and in fact the entire Southland that it should be brought to the attention of everyone. It is in a large measure explains our present financial depression.

The section of his report referred to follows:

"Last week I made a canvas of the stores in the desire to learn some of the things that are holding back Georgia development. I found a situation that to me was appalling and one which in a large measure explains the financial situation in Georgia today. I give below a list of items found in our stores that should be purchased in Georgia and from Georgia, and this money kept in our own state. Any other procedure is fatal to our own development. I do not think to this and see what we are doing to our own detriment. I find that we are buying:

Peas from Maine and Maryland; beans from Michigan, New York and California; sweet corn from Maine, New York and California; Potatoes from Maine; sweet potatoes from Maryland and New York; tomato catsup from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and Indiana; peaches from California; with a country over- flowing with Georgia cash syrup at anything from 25c gallon up, we are paying a high price for corn syrup from New York; with twenty million surplus bushels of corn we are buying grits, lye hominy, corn meal and corn starch from Iowa, Illinois, Pennsylvania and New York; English walnuts from California; tomatoes from California and New York; vegetable soup from Indiana; saut kraut from New York; red boots from Maine; apple jelly from Missouri and Maryland; peanut butter from New York; pea- nuts from Virginia; hams from Vir- ginia; soap from Cincinnati made from our own cotton seed oil; mules from Kentucky and Missouri; apples from Michigan, Ohio and Illinois; cheese from Wisconsin and New York; rice from New Orleans, China and Japan; brooms from Florida, Alabama and Ohio; apples from New York, Oregon and Wash- ington; matches from Ohio and Mich- igan; pimientos from Spain and New York; meats, all kinds, from Chicago and New York; sausage from Green Bay, Wis.; cranberry sauce from Michigan; ginger ale from Wisconsin and New York; grape juice from California and New Jersey; vinegar from Virginia; condensed milk from California and Washington; oysters from Maryland and New Jersey; hams from the central states; cotton goods from Massachusetts. Georgia cotton com- ing back to us three or four profit and exhibitant freight rates added over and above what we re- ceive for it, a speculator's ma- et: woolen goods that I had to use; wool from Georgia raised from Vir- ginia, made from Southern lumber, and there are still other items in the list.

Think of the economic loss from long freights, and are paying on these articles that should be pro- duced at home.

There is not a single article in this list that could not be produced in Georgia. We could even go further and include articles of iron, steel, aluminum, clay, asbestos, mica, cement, slate, lime, and other mineral products. With the exception of cer- tain distinctly tropical fruits, drugs, rubber, tannin and coffee, Georgia could furnish the entire list of our needs. I might even go further and say that I am not sure but what we could produce some of the drugs and the teas and coffees. We could build a wall around our state and go on living as comfortably as we are now if we would properly develop our nat- ural resources."

Mr. Criles further made an appeal to the women of Georgia to give this

AD CLUB INVITES ARTICLES FOR SALE

WISH TO PUBLISH LIST OF ALL ARTICLES OFFERED BY FARMERS ON GOLDEN RULE DAY.

In promoting the farmers' auction on the first Monday in each month, the Statesboro Advertising Club is trying to stimulate trade and give the people of the county a means of converting into cash the articles around the home that farm owners are of little or no value to the owner. Many times a farmer has a buggy, a wagon, a musical instrument, or some other article that he does not need, and somewhere else there is a man who is in need of just that very thing. The farmers' auction is a medium of exchange. There is no cost except the two per cent commission paid to the auctioneer for his work.

The three sales that have been held have been successful, but in order to make them more of an asset to the state, a longer list of articles for sale is needed. You are not limited in your choice of articles that you may wish to put on sale. List anything on your farm that you wish to sell—cows, horses, mules, wagons, buggies, farm prod- ucts, canned goods, furniture, ladies' fancy work, chickens, etc.

Have you a high four-post bed, a very old quilt, an old piece of furni- ture, a spinning wheel, or some other object that has been in your posses- sion for many years? People are al- ways interested in antiques, and if you do not want them, you might find a ready buyer at the auction.

In order to give the people an idea of what will be offered for sale, the Advertising Club wishes to have pub- lished a list of all articles that will be offered at the next auction. If you are going to have something for sale, send a post card to Peter Don- aldson, secretary of the Advertising Club, immediately in order that your articles may be listed in the paper.

The next auction will be held on Monday, Jan. 15, at 10 o'clock. The articles to be sold will be listed in the paper.

The action was decided upon after an all-day session in which active heads of the county for the railroad and the county participated, and which was called by smaller preliminary meeting of rail- road executives and labor leaders with Mr. Hoover.

The regional conferences, Mr. Hoover said, would be held in the future, and the railroad service em- ployees had been brought to the fore by negotiations participated in by railroad officials and union repre- sentatives in districts where work was performed during all the period prior to the war. Further, it is said, that the method of reconciling differences by negotiations prior to appealing to the labor board situa- tion was entirely disconnected from negotiations over coal mining wages, and he has tentatively embarked upon as representative of the admin- istration.

NEGRO POPULATION

LARGELY MIGRATORY

(New York Tribune)

Analysis of last year's census figures reveals throughout the Union a marked inclination of the negro population to migrate from state to state.

Thus, while in 1900 only 16.6 per cent and in 1910 only 16.6 per cent of the colored people were living in their native state, in 1920 the percentage rose to 19.9.

There has been so much talk at intervals for many years about negro migration from the South, because of the political and social discrimination against the race, that it might be supposed that the movement was chiefly to the North. It is true that there has in the last decade been a considerable migration from the South to the North. But much more marked has been the migration along lines of latitude, from east to west, or west to east.

New York, of all important states, shows one of the least changes, the percentage of negroes born here who have gone to other states to live having been 18.3 in 1900, 19.2 in 1910, and 19.8 in 1920. New Jersey shows a greater increase, the percentage for the three years being, respectively, 16.9, 19.3 and 20.6. In the middle West the migration and its increase are both much larger, the figures for Ohio being 18.8, 22.2 and 24.4, and Indiana, 21.9, 27.5 and 32.6.

Even those states far surpassed by Kansas, with percentages of 26.7, 32.1 and 38.9. Remembering the war which was waged to make Kansas a free state, there is a touch of irony in the fact that considerably more than one-third of the negroes born in that state have gone out of it to live.

The actual migration from Southern states is doubtless larger than from Northern states, but the ratio of it to the whole negro population is generally much less. Virginia shows figures similar to those of her neighbors at the North. But in North Carolina the migration is actually decreasing, the percentage of negroes born there, but removed, having been 18.6 in 1900, 17.7 in 1910 and 18.5 in 1920. In South Carolina the figures under three censuses were 12.9, 14.2 and 16.7, and in Georgia they were similar, but little less, in each year. From Louisiana and Texas the migration is large, though the actual percentages are still small.

The percentage of native negroes who had migrated from Louisiana was only 8.2 in 1900, 11.5 in 1910, and 15.4 in 1920; and in Texas the figures were, respectively, 4.5, 9.3 and 10.6.

The colored people form one of the most restless and migratory elements of our national population.
But this trait cannot be considered a traditional and inherent characteristic, but rather is the result of extraordinary circumstances. Migration of a certain kind is, of course, necessary, desirable and profitable, such as that from the Atlantic states which settled and developed the West. But remigration in order to make possible settlement in another state is very different from that which is just a restless drifting about from state to state.

The situation is discouraging in other respects: The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year reveals the fact that it received forty applications for abandonment of 792 miles of road. Within recent months three railways in Georgia have been dismantled and their lines sold to the public.

In view of these facts the instant public demand for a reduction in rates has been surprising. Nevertheless, the demand has been so general and so strong that the railway executives have during the year granted many concessions. Among those of importance to shippers in the Southern territory was the enlarged milling-in-transit to a lower level. On January 1st a further reduction of 10 per cent went into effect on railroad rates for various products of the farm, orchard and pasture. On the same date the federal transportation tax of 8 per cent on passenger fares, and 8 per cent on freight revenues was discontinued. That amounted in 1920 on the Central of Georgia Railway to $1,020,600, and to slightly less during 1921. On December 20th, by order of the Railroad Commission of Georgia, the surcharge of 50 per cent on passenger sleeping and parlor cars was eliminated. During 1921 that charge amounted to $1,000,000.

Thus the first steps have been taken toward relieving transportation burdens. The railways further propose to take the steps necessary under the law to bring about a reduction in the expenditures for wages, with the expressed understanding that the benefit of such reduction in operating costs shall be transferred to the public in a further reduction of rates.

The primary duty of the railways is to provide safe, adequate and dependable transportation of person and property to the people. Railway workers are developing their old spirit of loyalty and efficiency, conceived upon a new foundation of public service. The public is taking a more intelligent interest in railway affairs.

It is upon the basis of co-operation that we must build our future. Co-operation must be actual and not theoretical. Since agriculture is a basic industry the obligation rests upon the farmer to diversify, to plant with an understanding that he can no longer rely upon a single staple crop; to put his products in marketable shape, to sell not be left to fight his debts as he can. In this endeavor the farmer must make moderate profits. The merchant must plan with an eye to quick turnover and moderate profits. The banker must aid in a selling program and labor must make concessions for the common good. With such a program vitalized by co-operation, results will be certain.

We of the Central of Georgia pledge our best endeavor to help make the record of the railways creditable and efficient during 1922.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

W. A. WINSTON,
President, Central of Georgia Railway Company.
